

Amateur Radio Licences

Amateur Radio licences are obtained by passing a progressive system of Foundation, Intermediate and Full levels of the Radio Communications Examination.

Anyone entering the hobby must go through each stage before progressing to the next. Foundation and Intermediate levels include operating and practical assessments as well as theory. CARS offer a full range of amateur radio training courses.

CARS Foundation Courses

Get on the air with the entry-level Foundation Licence. CARS run Foundation Courses that are on six successive Thursday evenings at 7-9pm at Danbury Village Hall.

On successful completion of the Foundation Course the candidates will be able to apply for a Foundation Licence which allows the use of all modes on most of the Amateur bands with up to 10W power.

The cost is £60¹ which includes room hire, the RSGB Exam Fee and the 'Foundation Licence Manual' training book.

Please fill in the form overleaf with full details of your name, address, postcode, contact phone/mobile numbers and email

Foundation Candidates are welcome at CARS meetings and can develop their skills further by our training/skills events.
